WHAT WE DO

Sprinkler system installers will lay, install, repair, maintain, alter, and test various fire protection systems. Some sprinkler system installers specialize in installations, testing, or inspection. They read and interpret drawings, design specifications, and fire codes to determine installation requirements. Using hand and power tools, they place brackets, clamps, and hangers to support piping systems, which consist of pipelines and sprinkler heads. As part of the work, sprinkler system installers may be required to weld, solder, and connect piping systems to water mains, supply tanks, pumps, compressors, and control equipment. They also provide cost estimates as part of projects.<sup>2</sup>

Sprinkler system installers work indoors and outdoors, in a team, at heights, and in cramped and awkward spaces. They must also lift heavy materials. Persons suited for this trade have planning skills, safety awareness, patience, physical stamina, agility, mechanical aptitude, and coordination. An experienced sprinkler system installer can become a foreman, superintendent, become self-employed, or even transfer their skills to other pipe trades.<sup>3</sup>
